

Religious Observance Calendar 2017-2018

The Office of the Dean of the College encourages faculty to be aware and respectful of the diverse religious observances of our college community members. Faculty are encouraged to excuse a student from class attendance on a holy day and to make accommodation for assignment due dates. The on-line Undergraduate Bulletin 2017-2018 states "The undergraduate faculties are sensitive to the religious practices of members of the student body. At the beginning of the semester, students who will be absent from class for religious observances should confer with the instructor(s) about the date of the absence." Please remind your students of this policy.

We encourage academic offices and departments to refrain from scheduling college-wide or other major events on holy days, especially those dates on which people of a given tradition usually do not work or attend school. While the calendar below is not a comprehensive list of holy days, it includes dates of particular significance to traditions represented on campus. (Note that in the future holy days may fall on different dates from year to year because many are calculated based on a lunar calendar. Dates of holy day observances may also vary regionally.)
